

STANFORD BRENT'S work has moved from sky images to more earthly motifs. He has rediscovered lyrical landscapes and oceans, glowing buildings, and interiors filled with blushes of late afternoon light. Skies often still figure, but not as the paintings' sole theme. Living in Rome during winter and spring 1987 helped to unfurl these new realizations.

February, 1988